

PRESS RELEASE

Contact

Fleur Stigter
Sdu Publishers
Tel: + 31 (0) 70. 37.89.713
F.Stigter@sdu.nl

For Immediate Release

New Journal Gives Unique Insight in European Employment Law

September 30th 2009, The Hague (The Netherlands)– Sdu Publishers has launched the premier issue of a new journal, 'European Employment Law Cases' (EELC). The release follows a short test period during which a fast growing number of subscriptions was established, clearly showing a demand for the title. Published both offline and online (www.eelc-online.com), the journal is easily accessible to all everywhere.

The basis of the publication consists of summaries (in English) of judgments from European countries and the European Court of Justice. The website includes links to the full texts of the original judgments. Additionally, the LinkedIn group entitled 'European Employment Lawyers' facilitates international networking opportunities and sharing insights from professionals throughout Europe and beyond. To ensure only employment law professionals join, a restricted access policy is maintained.

"Lawyers are often unaware of how courts in other jurisdictions interpret and apply legal doctrines in the area of employment law. This is a missed opportunity because interpretations in one jurisdiction may be useful to other jurisdictions as well. After all, the same European Directives must be applied. EELC is also useful to judges because they can follow the same line of thought." Gerrard Boot, Judge in Amsterdam and subscriber of EELC, explains.

EELC has a Board of National Correspondents currently consisting of employment law specialists in 20 EU member states. They are the magazine's eyes and ears for their respective jurisdictions and will notify the editors of any developments in their country which they feel should be shared with their foreign colleagues. The Academic editors will see to the quality of the submissions and will add an overall perspective. This Academic Board consists of employment law professors and other university representatives from 12 jurisdictions.

Notes for Editors

About EELC

First and only Journal with summaries of European Employment Law Cases and brief references to recent European Court of Justice cases and conclusions. Related to 'European Employment Lawyers' network group in LinkedIn. To get acquainted the content of the test version will remain freely accessible at www.eelc-online.com. Subscription rate (1 year, 6 issues): € 350,-

About Sdu Uitgevers/Publishers

As a multi-media publisher of specialist information, Sdu Uitgevers provides its clients with essential trade-specific information on a daily basis. We do this at any required moment and in any required form, such as newspapers, magazines, books or seminars. Our clients increasingly opt for online information sources, sometimes in combination with the well-known printed publications. Sdu Uitgevers is based in The Hague, The Netherlands ('capital of international law').

The legal world entirely depends on accurate and up-to-date information. Sdu Uitgevers has multi-media publications especially for legal professionals, focusing on almost all branches of law.

With more than 3,000 different publications a year, our company continuously improves itself and the services to its clients. Innovation takes first place for us. More information at <http://www.sdu.nl/en/overons>